DEATH RAY DISCOVERER SHIED AT TEST SAYS OFFICIAL

Air Secretary Declares He Balked At Demonstration

MAKES TROUBLE

Inventor Made Extravagant Claims Before, Charge

(Reuter's Service)

London, May 28.—The question of the so-called 'death ray' was raised in the House of Commons today. Replying to Commander J. M. Kenworthy, Liberal Member for Kingston-upon-Hull, Mr. W. Leach, Under-Secretary of State for Air, emphasised that Mr. Grindell Matthews had been offered and had refused the opportunity to demonstrate his invention under conditions which would satisfy a scientist or business men. Every facility had been offered to him to give a demonstration which would be satisfactory to himself and to the Services. The Departments had been placed in a difficult position in dealing with Mr. Matthews, partly owing to the vigorous press campaign which was being conducted on his behalf (Opposition cheers) and because it was not the first occasion on which he had submitted schemes for which extravagant claims had been made. Consequently, the Departments had been unable to accept Mr. Matthews's statement in regard to this invention without a scrutiny, which apparently, he was not prepared to face.

RUSS REFUGEES MUST FIND WORK OR QUIT TSINGTAO

Police Department Issues Ultimatum; Thievery Charged

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tsingtao, May 24.—The Police Department has issued a strict warning to Russian refugees that they must either obtain employment or be banished from the city. The police have frowned upon the constantly increasing Russian colony here, as they say that it contains troublesome elements which are a source of annoyance and worse.

The police say that the Russians flock to Tsingtao, labouring under the misapprehension that they can find employment here. When they arrive, there are no positions for them and they either become objects of charity on the part of generous countrymen or resort to thievery, from the proceeds of which they purchase food for their subsistence. The police declare that scores are roaming the streets and they are resolved to drive them out of the city If this step is not effective, they will be deported to Siberia.

Thefts in several homes and shops recently are laid at the door of indigent Russians. The other day $400 worth of silk goods, which disappeared from a silk shop, was found in the home of several Russian women, who were arrested.

The Russians, of course, are being dealt with in the same way as the Chinese as they are not protected by extraterritorial rights.

Peking Dust

A Daily Chronicle Of The Capital's Gossip And News

(From Our Staff Correspondent)

Peking, May 24.—The police order just issued prohibiting small boys from pulling ricsnas in Peking furnishes sumcient excuse for a few remarks on the relative merits of the specie ricsha as it is known in Peking and Shanghai.

Shanghai, of course, has a much larger number of ricshas than the capital, but the ricshas here are much better in every respect, there are fewer squabbles with the coolies over the amount of the fare, and prove a much more satisfactory mode of transportation.

The ricshas in use in Peking are all of the type and construction known as "private ricshas" in Shanghai. None of the high, uncomfortable and dirty rattletraps such as are in general use on the streets of Shanghai, are to be seen. Every vehicle is slung low, is extremely comfortable to ride in, and, despite the flying clouds of dust that make Peking what it is, are kept much cleaner, with white seat covers and sides, and apparently new and clean tops.

The rate of pay for ricshas in Peking is 30 cents an hour, or they can be hired for the day for $1. When a foreigner hires a ricsha to go from say the Grand Hotel de Pekin to the Lama Temple at the end of Hatamen Street, he pays 20 cents. The distance is equivalent to a ride from the French Club down to the Astor House. In Peking the coolie accepts his payment, unless it is much too little, without argument or row. Try to take the same ride in Shanghai for 20 cents and you'll have an argument on your hands that will take three Sikhs to finish!

Traffic problems in Peking are not, of course, as prevalent as they are in Shanghai because of the few automobiles living about the streets, as well as the smaller number of ricshas. The few motor cars in operation, however, are mostly the limousines of some of the prominent Chinese officials of the capital or militarists or their aides, and they make enough of a problem for most any city. In addition to a laxity in observing the rules of the road—they are supposed to drive on the left side of the street here, as in Shanghai, but don't, crossing over whenever they please to avoid ruts—they drive at a speed that would be prohibited in Shanghai or the driver would find himself in the Mixed Court or the court of the country of which he is a citizen.

The case of General Feng, the Christian General, is an example of what the Chinese militarists do when they think they can get away with it, and Peking people still tell the story of the prominent Chinese who, after being sentenced to jail for knocking down and seriously injuring a foreign woman, is still riding about in his motor car. Since he is supposed

URGA EXPELS SWEDISH GROUP OF MISSIONERS

No Details Regarding Forcing Out Of Six Workers

(China Press Correspondence)

Kalgan, May 25.—A telegram has been received from the missionaries of the Swedish Mongol Mission in Urga, stating that they have been expelled from that city. Further details are still lacking, except that they expected to reach Hallong Oss, about 100 miles from Kalgan where other members of the same mission are stationed, some time near the end of May.

There were six missionaries at Urga: Mr. Johnson, Mr. Bjorklund, Miss Falck, Miss Hanson, Miss Folke and Miss Ollen. The first to be stationed at Urga by his mission were Miss Ollen and Miss Nilson—the latter since having had to return home because of bad health—who went there in the summer of 1919. In spite of difficulties and dangers, the work grew quickly, so that recently six missionaries have been working there. Besides evangelistic work there has been much medical work done practically free.

World Exposition Scheme Needs More Investigation Businessmen Here Decide

Move To Request Various Commercial Bodies To Name Representatives For Preliminary Survey

The proposal for a World Exposition to be held in Shanghai, brought forward by Mr. G. A. Bena, was put before a meeting of local businessmen and representatives of commercial organisations yesterday and was received in an attitude of cautious appraisal by the forty or so foreigners and Chinese who assembled in the rooms of the General Chamber of Commerce to listen to the proposition.

There was considerable discussion of the project, particularly as to the financial aspect and the necessity for more definite outlining of the scheme and as a result Mr. Bena's original proposal that a committee be appointed by the meeting to prepare a final technical and financial plan was shelved. Instead, it was decided that the various commercial bodies, foreign and Chinese, be invited to appoint representatives to form an "exploratory" body which will assist Mr. Bena in a comprehensive study of the matter and later submit a report on which further action may be taken.

At yesterday's meeting there were present, besides interested individuals, representatives of the British, American, Italian, Japanese, German and Russian chambers of commerce. Mr. S. Fessenden was expected to take the chair but was unable to be present and Dr. H. Chatley was elected to preside. There were no further preliminaries and Dr. Chatley called upon Mr. Bena to state the purpose of the meeting.

MR. BENA SPEAKS

Mr. Bena said:

"Mr. Chairman, Gentlemen.—This meeting has been called, not to discuss a definite plan for a World Exhibition, but to consider the advisability of such an exhibition and for the purpose of appointing a committee, representing the different interests of this city, the duty of which would be to prepare a final technical and financial project.

"It has been suggested that we should have come before you with concrete proposals for discussion, but we have decided to come rather with the suggestion for the undertaking. The compilation of such a great project cannot be the work of a few men, but the collaboration of all parties interested.

"It is primarily the great moral benefit, issuing from a disinterested and cordial collaboration between foreigners and Chinese, that prompted us to make the suggestion, besides the conviction that the execution of this great project will mark the end of all misunderstanding and jealousies amongst the different nationalities here and amongst the Chinese themselves. The unification of all factions in China and a better understanding between foreigners and Chinese must be the vision that must guide us through the difficult, but not impossible, task of materialising our scheme.

"We have not convened you here in order to ask for your financial, but for your moral, support, for your advice and for your free collaboration with the work of the committee that you are going to appoint.

CHINA'S FUTURE ROLE

"A broad vision of today's economical situation will clearly show us what an immense role China will play in the future economical readjustment of the world when a mutual understanding and loyal collaboration will permit the development of the enormous resource of this great country.

"Shanghai, because of her geographical position and importance in Eastern trade is destined to develop more rapidly than any other city in the world. Why not prepare the plan for a greater Shanghai, concentrating on the function of this city during the next twenty-five years. It would be possible to embody in it the plan for the World Exhibition, for the erection of permanent buildings and for public work indispensible to the gradual expansion of the city.

"I wish to dispel from the mind of our Chinese friends the idea that our suggestion is a trap in order to make them agree to the extension of settlements. It will not be the task of the committee to discuss the future status of Shanghai, but to prepare a plan for the extension of the city without any preoccupation as to her future political standing.

"The hearty collaboration and reconciliation of different interests will make possible political agreements of everlasting duration. We are confident that you are convinced that the moral result obtainable from this undertaking will be fully justified.

"We have been told that a World Exhibition in Shanghai would be a financial failure, because all other World Exhibi-

FIVE MISSIONERS ARE CAPTURED BY TAIWAN BANDITS

Consular Agent Sent To Seek Release; Legations Prod Peking

Peking, May 29.—The British missionaries, Messrs. R. A. Jaffray and E. H. Carne and the American missionaries Messrs. Rex and Pay and Dr. Miller, travelling from Wuchow to Pinglo on board the American hospital-ship Roanoke, were captured by bandits at Taiwan, ten miles from Pienlo. The whole party were carried off into the hills.

This is the party that was mentioned as proceeding to Kweilin with the object of succouring the missionaries in that beleaguered city with the approval of the local Chinese authorities, reports having reached Wuchow that two missionaries had been killed at Kweilin.

The American Vice-Consul, Mr. Chamberlain, has been sent to Wuchow from Canton to try to effect the release of the captured missionaries and to see what can be done for the missionaries at Kweilin.

The British and American Legations have drawn the attention of the Chinese Government to this latest outrage, requesting immediate steps towards the release of the captives.

HOUSE PASSES BILL PROVIDING FOR 6 GUNBOATS

Funds Also Provided For Bringing Navy To 5:5:3 Ratio

(Reuter's American Service)

Washington, May 28.—The House of Representatives today passed the bill to bring the Navy to the 5:5!3 ratio, authorising the construction of eight scout cruisers and six river gunboats and improvements to six battleships at a total cost of $111,000,000.

The House rejected an amendment to the Naval Bill authorising an appropriation for the elevation of the guns of certain battleships, but approved the expenditure of $18,500,000 for the conversion of six battleships into oil-burners and affording them additional protection against submarines and aircraft.

La Follette To Run If Other Parties Remain Unpurged

(Reuter's American Service)

Washington, May 28.—Senator La Follette has announced his willingness to run independently for the presidency, if neither of the two great parties at the coming Conventions shows ability and willingness to purge itself of the long domination of evil influences. At the same time he denounces the Communists, whom he charges with seeking to obtain control of the Farmer and Labor Progressive Convention meeting at St. Paul on June 27.

Rum Fleets Tear Up Cables, Charge

(Reuter's American Service)

New York, May 28.—The Western Union and French Cable Company are vigorously protesting to the authorities at the damage caused to their cables by the rum fleets anchored off the New Jersey and Long Island coasts. An estimate of the damage is several hundred thousands of dollars annually. It is alleged to have been caused by rum-runners, while riding out heavy seas, dragging anchor and breaking the cables.

AMERICANS HERE TODAY OBSERVE MEMORIAL DAY

Services At Bubbling Well Cemetery; Rev. J. M. Yard Is Speaker

Americans in Shanghai will observe Memorial Day today with the customary ceremony at Bubbling Well Cemetery, and decoration of the graves of American soldiers and sailor dead, while the U. S. Consulate-General and other offices and American hongs will close for the day.

The Memorial Day services will be held at Bubbling Well Cemetery at 9:15 o'clock this morning and all Americans and their friends are invited to attend. United States Consul-General Edwin S. Cunningham will act as master of ceremonies and the address will be delivered by Rev. James M. Yard. A detachment of men from the U. S. warships in port, and the American Company and American Troop of the S. V. C. will participate.

The Navy contingent and volunteers are to move off from the Recreation Ground, headed by the Municipal Band, at 8:30 a.m. sharp, proceeding by Bubbling Well Road to the cemetery, where the program will be as follows:

Opening Prayer—Rev. C. L. Boynton.

Music—Municipal Band.

Address—Rev. James M. Yard.

Benediction—Rev. C. M. Drury.

Volleys—American Company S. V. C.

Taps—Bugler, U. S. Navy.

Millerand's Fate Now In Balance

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, May 28.—A problem of the first magnitude, which is at present transcending that of the personnel of the new Ministry itself, is the fate of President Millerand, whose resignation is demanded by the Left parties. They urge that the President's abdication should be forced by the refusal of any Left leader to accept the Premiership from his hands, while the Right and Center parties are equally insistent that the President's constitutional duty is to remain at his post. Meanwhile the last has by no means been heard of M. Poincare, whose recent speeches have been in the nature of a rallying call to his supporters to close their ranks and form an Opposition phalanx which he intends to lead.

D'OISY REACHES PEKING; U. S. FLIERS DUE SOON

FRENCH FLIER SUCCESSFUL IN HARD TRIP TO CAPITAL

Most Difficult Stretch Encountered Thus Far

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, May 29.—Captain d'Oisy arrived at Nanyuan at 5:45 p.m.

(Eastern News Agency)

Peking, May 29.—Captain d'Oisy arrived in safety at Nanyuan on the outskirts of Peking at 5:40 p.m. amid loud cheers and a welcome by crowds of people, including Mr. Yoshizawa, Japanese Minister to Peking. Interviewed by a representative of the Eastern News Agency, Captain d'Oisy stated:

"I arrived at Hsuchowfu at 9 a.m. and immediately left there, arriving at Tsinanfu at 1 p.m. and left Tsinanfu at 2:30 p.m. On account of the imperfect condition of the aeroplane, I have on the way encountered unparalleled difficulties and thus required a great deal of time to cover the distance between Shanghai and Peking."

It is understood that the French flier, after two days' rest here, will fly on to Mukden and then to Japan by way of Chosen.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, May 29.—Capt. d'Oisy, interviewed by Reuter's correspondent, said that the Chinese authorities en route were helpful but it was his most difficult flight so far. As he was landing at Hsuchowfu a tyre burst, causing breakage of a shock absorber strut which the fivers repaired.

LORDS ARE COLD TO PARLEY WITH SOVIET, ASK END

Motion, Asking "As Early Conclusion As Possible," Passed

(Reuter's Service)

London, May 28.—The Earl of Mayo, moving for the immediate discontinuance of the Anglo-Soviet Conference in the House of Lords today, said that he considered that flirting with Bolshevism did not commend itself to the Empire.

Lord Parmoor, the Lord President of the Council, said that the Government hoped that the Conference would continue until an arrangement satisfactory to both countries was reached. He thought that there was no reason why this result should not be obtained, if outside partisans abstained from interference. The Government were endeavouring to speed up the negotiations, but there were a very large number of issues involved, several of which were of great importance. The Government regarded the attainment of agreement as most important to Europe.

Marquess Curzon declared that the Conference communiques had been negative, ambiguous and obscure. He did not wish to be unfriendly and harsh, and therefore suggested a modification of the motion, expressing the opinion that the Conference should be brought to as early a conclusion as possible.

The House agreed to this modification.

Peking Cabinet To Resign En Bloc

Peking, May 29.—It is authoritatively reported that as a result of a conclave held immediately after the Cabinet meeting today, the Cabinet Ministers have decided to resign en bloc and proceeded to the Presidential Office.

MAKE PLANS FOR ARRIVAL OF AMERICAN PLANES HERE

Information Issued By Official Reception Body

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, May 29.—The American Airmen are expecting, weather permitting, to hop off from Kasumigaura on Saturday, making Kagoshima the same day, only stopping at Kushimoto to re-fuel.

They are at present busy testing out new engines and effecting necessary repairs.

The following information regarding the arrival of the American around-the-world airplane flight is given out by the American Consul-General Mr. Edwin S. Cunningham: Captain W. I. Eisler, local representative designated by the Flight Advance Officer, and Mr. Gardner Crane. Commander of the American Legion, who is in charge of the entertainment of the aviators while in Shanghai. It is given out as information, and without responsibility, and is of course subject to such modification as the immediate exigency may require.

1.—The date of arrival is not yet known, but will not be before June 1. The planes are expected to fly from Nagasaki to Shanghai direct, leaving Nagasaki early in the morning and reaching Shanghai from five to eight hours later.

TO SIGNAL DEPARTURE

2.—Every effort will be made to give publicity to the news of departure from Nagasaki when received. It is hoped to advise the principal newspapers, clubs and hotels. In addition, the International Signal "Answering Pennant" will be run up below the American flag on the Consulate flag staff three hours before the time of expected arrival or as early after that time as the information can be had.

3.—The landing field chosen by Lieutenant Malcolm S. Lawton, Advance Officer of the Flight, during his recent visit to Shanghai, is the Whangpoo River opposite and below the Standard Oil installation in the neighborhood of Black Point. It is expected that the planes will land from the direction of Shanghai Baptist College and will be immediately moored to temporary buoys laid by kind permission of the Harbor Master between the Standard Oil and Vacuum Oil installations on the Pootung side of the river.

4.—The planes are numbered 2, 3 and 4, and are expected to land in succession in that order.

NEED CLEAR FIELD

5.—The most serious problem connected with the landing is to insure an absolutely clear landing field. The Chinese authorities and the Harbor authorities have volunteered to do everything possible to this end, but in addition it is earnestly requested that all shipping firms, masters of vessels, pilots, business firms with craft on the river, laodahs, and private individuals will do everything possible to keep the landing field clear of craft during the period when the planes may be expected. It would be particularly appreciated if this request could be given the widest possible circulation among Chinese shipping men, boatmen and junkmen.

It is requested that spectators will, if possible, view the flight from shore. If launches are necessarily used, they must remain above a line across the river from the Standard Oil Wharf and should make fast to shore on the Shanghai side.

6.—After the planes land no boats, other than the official service boats, must approach nearer than the line of the Standard Oil Wharf. Failure to observe this rule may result in serious damage to the planes and injury to the personnel.

PLAN FOR RECEPTION

7.—The Commander of the Flight has stated that on account of the exigencies of the situation the personnel cannot accept any invitations for prearranged social functions. It is hoped that ar informal reception for the American community and its friends to meet the aviators can be held at the Columbia Country Club, but this will depend upon conditions after arrival.

8.—The aviators are expected to come from the landing field to the Customs Jetty after giving necessary attention to their planes. They will then be taken to the Astor House Hotel where they will be the guests of the local American organisations during their stay.

9.—It is understood that the flight may be continued on the morning following arrival. For taking off with a full load, a stretch of 2-1/2 miles of clear water is desired. It is therefore especially requested that the suggestions made as to landing field in Section 5, will be again carried out at the time of departure of the planes.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, May 29.—It is reported from Hakodate that the American destroyer with the British plane for Squadron-Leader MacLaren will leave for Hongkong tonight. The destroyer will arrive at Hongkong on Monday morning.

Sees Airway Link To India In 3 Years

(Reuter's Service)

London, May 28.—In the house of Commons today Mr. Wm. Leach, Under-Secretary for Air, moving the Committee Stage of the supplementary estimate of £350,000 in connection with the Government's airship scheme, said that the prospect of reaching India in five days and Australia in ten to twelve days justified the taking of a few risks (Cheers). If the scheme were successful, he was confident that it would have tremendous possibilities. Three years was the outside period expected to elapse before they would be able to make the journey to India, but he was confident that it would be less. The Government proposed to begin research at Cardington and to proceed at the earliest possible moment with the building of an airship of five million cubic feet capacity. He was not authorised to say that the Government intended to run a passenger service to India, but they purposed first giving contractors the option of doing it themselves.

The Vote was agreed to.

Rail Officials Take Bribes, Is Charge

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tsingtao, May 24.—Railway officials are exercised over reports that certain railway agents are habitually accepting bribes from shippers for preferential treatment in the matter of filing car orders. Two were found guilty and were summarily discharged. The officials have promulgated strict orders that all shippers are to be treated alike and that no favors are to be shown. The instructions have been printed in the local vernacular papers and in them is a warning to shippers, the railway asserting that it will be necessary to take steps against shippers who tempt its employes.

LETTERS REVEAL PREMIERS' STAND ON RUHR REPORT

MacDonald And Poincare Ready To Confer When Latter Was Defeated

(Reuter's Service)

London, May 28.—The Foreign Office today issued the correspondence which was exchanged between Mr. Ramsay MacDonald and M. Poincare at the middle of the month with reference to the proposed visit of the French Premier to Chequers, which was later cancelled in consequence of French political circumstances.

The letters were framed in exceedingly cordial terms.

Mr. MacDonald in his first letter, dated May 14, asked if, in view of the uncertain political situation then existing, it were not possible to pursue an exploration of the problems arising from the Dawes Report, at least tentatively for the time being, his object being to save time.

M. Poincare's reply, dated May 15, definitely declared the impending resignation of his Cabinet, but expressed the opinion that the conversations could quite well continue in a preliminary form.

In the meantime, the French Premier had written a long letter on May 14, which crossed Mr. MacDonald's expressing his belief from the accounts he had received from the Belgian Ministers of their conversations with Mr. MacDonald, that there was every ground for hoping that a final agreement could be reached without difficulty. M. Poincare also recapitulated his Government's attitude in respect of the Dawes Report, as already known.

Tells Soviet's Aim For Home Commerce

(Reuter's Service)

Moscow, May 28.—M. Kameneff's report on internal commerce says that the crisis in 1923 has been succeeded by a period of development of commercial transactions. Thanks to the reform of the currency, the Government would no longer have recourse to inflation. The Government's main aim in internal commerce was consolidation of the co-operative societies, regulation of State markets and supply of articles cheaply to the peasants, thus combatting the domination of the retail trade by private capital, the rights of which would remain unchanged.

French Flier Reaches Peking

While flying, the magneto burnt out and a value had to be replaced. He made a perfect landing at Nanyuan escorted by a Chinese plane which went out to meet him. Thousands of people were present including the French Minister, most of the French community, representatives of the Legations and numerous high Chinese officials. A feature of the reception was presentations to Capt. d'Oisy and his mechanic of commemorative medals and certificates from the President and the Aviation Department and also handsome curios. The Aviation Director read an address of welcome to which Capt. d'Oisy replied, thanking the Aviation Department for the Assistance it had given throughout.

Capt. d'Oisy expects to remain in Peking for two or perhaps three days. The French Minister is entertaining him to a banquet tonight. A Presidential and other receptions are arranged for tomorrow.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Suchowfu, May 29.—Captain d'Oisy arrived here at 9:15 this morning. Thousands of people, including batches of school girls and boys, witnessed his arrival and departure. Captain d'Oisy stayed for two hours. He alighted and started splendidly.

(Special to The China Press)

Tsinanfu, May 29.—Captain d'Oisy arrived in Tsinanfu at 1:10 p.m. He was received by officials and entertained on the field. The fliers were delayed a short while in making minor repairs and left for Peking at 3 p.m.

Capt. d'Oisy left Shanghai yesterday morning at 5 o'clock with weather conditions favorable for his long hop to Hsuchowfu.

Consul-General Wilden and a considerable number of other members of the French community journeyed out to Lunghua to wish the daring airman and his mechanician, Sergt. Vesin, bon voyage.

During the course of the morning the French Consulate received word that the plane had passed Nanking shortly before 7 o'clock and a little later a telegram announced that he had reached Hsuchowfu at 9 o'clock, had taken on fuel and departed for Tsinanfu.

to be in jail, he covers his face with a handkerchief whenever he rides through the Legation Quarter, but the rest of the time shows his face boldly. It is evident that "squeeze" is just as prevalent and just as potent in Peking as anywhere else in China.

There are, apparently, few accidents on the streets, but that may be attributed to the scarcity of automobiles rather than to the careful driving exhibited. All the Chinese drivers of Peking seem to be imbued with the same spirit of recklessness and the same forshipping of speed that features Shanghai chauffeurs. The only difference is that in Shanghai they are held in check, more or less, by the knowledge that all fast trails, sooner or later, lead to the Mixed Court and a fine or imprisonment. In Peking they have a chance to get away with it.

One of the reasons Peking has so few motor cars is the fact that the city boasts of what are probably the narrowest streets in the world. Outside of the streets in the Legation Quarter—and the Legation Quarters is just as different from the rest of Peking as the International Settlement and the French Concession are from the Chinese districts surrounding foreign Shanghai—there are only three or four streets, notably Morrison and Ratamen, that can be called honest-to-heck thoroughfares. The others are all called 'hutungs'; and the name, meaningless to the new arrival, fits them to perfection.

They wind about the city like dirty, grayish little serpents, turning whenever they happen to feel like it, and encased all the way between the walls that are the predominant feature of the landscape in the capital. Most places they are just wide enough for two rickshas to pass, but in many of them it is all a rickshas can do to go along without scraping off all the paint on the sides, and in a few you simply have to get out and walk.

All in all, it seems that Shanghai could take a few hints from Peking in the matter of rickshas—and it is to be remembered that Peking is a Chinese administered city, while Shanghai proper is administered by foreign Councilmen—and Peking could learn a great deal from Shanghai in traffic control and street widening. It would, of course, take away a great deal from the picturesqueness of the capital to tear down the walls and walls and walls that encompass every hutung and make the tiny little streets wide enough to drive on, but if Peking wants automobiles it will have to do it. Until that is done, motor car sales in Peking will be few and far between.

Through the Looking Glass-

"WHAT does it matter where my body happens to be?" said the Knight as Alice dragged him out by the feet, "my mind goes on working just the same In fact the more head-downwards I am, the more I keep on inventing things."

"Now the cleverest thing I ever did," he went on, "was to originate the idea of smoking a "Three Castles" between the soup and the fish."

"That was a good thing to invent, certainly," said Alice, "What else did you invent?"

"Smoking 'em between the fish and the entree," chuckled the Knight, "and then smoking 'em again between the entree and the pudding" "In fact," he went on, "I invent an excuse for smoking a "Three Castles" whenever I can."

Follies beauties may be drafted by cold-blooded scientists at the U. S. Bureau of Standards in an elaborate survey of the hosiery industry. Scientific men have started an investigation into methods of measuring hosiery. Some experts felt they could not get anywhere without seeing the latest things in actual use. It was suggested that the chorus girls be asked to exhibit silk, cotton and woolen hose that accurate measurements might be taken by the bureau.

Mr. Percy Noel, in charge of the Philadelphia Public Ledger's Far Eastern Bureau, on May 20 had a lengthy interview with Dr. Sun Yat-sen at his headquarters in Canton. In the course of a chat with a Hongkong Telegraph representative, Mr. Noel stated that he found Dr. Sun to be "very far from dead," as recently reported. He evidently had been indisposed, but he was now quite vigorous and active, and he energetically discussed political matters with Mr. Noel for close upon an hour.

HENLI REGATTA ON TOMORROW; CREW PROSPECTS

Americans Seem To Have Slight Edge In Fours, Though Swiss Are Good

As usual, speculation is running high as to the outcome of this spring's regatta at Henli, which starts tomorrow, but all in all the American crews seem to have a slight edge in the betting odds.

The developments of the last two months' training season have been interesting. From the very start the Swiss, who were able to muster four good oars, have been doing steady work developing their four, which without doubt is the most precise boat on the river. The men row well together, favoring a short, crisp stroke which they believe is best suited to their light crew. They have two veterans in Schmid and Schweizer, both of whom have been conspicuous in recent years. If the other two men in their four measure up to the standard of this pair the Swiss should finish first or second.

The English four, stroked by an old hand, R. R. West, appears of rather uncertain quality. Like the light Swiss crew they may find the gruelling mile and a half something of a strain. In any event they probably will have difficulty in measuring up to the splendid four which defeated America and Scotland last spring.

The American four is the best boat they have entered this season, although not more than three weeks ago the bow four of the American eight, comprising the newer and weaker half of the big crew, defeated the picked four without any great difficulty. The Americans then made a change in their four, placing a lighter, quicker man at No. 2, with the result that on form their boat looks like the winner of tomorrow's main event.

The Americans row a long, slow stroke and combine the qualities of weight, strength and skill that every rowing coach seeks. Their weight averages about 165, against 150 for the English boat, which is the next heaviest. The Scots this year were handicapped by lack of material. However, they have had the best coaching of all, from the club captain, Mr. Graham.

THE GRIFFIN RACES

There are more entries than usual for the Griffin events, which are rowed on fixed seats. This year the griffins who entered were divided into crews early in the season, with the intention of making as equal a distribution of weight as possible. In consequence there is much interest in the club as to which of these crews will finish first, in both pairs and fours.

CLUB EIGHTS

Each year it is customary for lists to be made up of all rowing members of the club, irrespective of nationality, and from this list one stroke is picked for each eight entrants. These strokes must be men who are not stroking an international eight in the regattas. This year the committee's choices for the four eights entered were Mr. Gulston, Mr. Huxley, Mr. McLennan and Mr. Stelle.

Because of the intense training for the international eights these crews seldom if ever get a chance to practice before the event, and much depends, therefore, on the skill shown by strokes in picking men that will balance their boats without much training. This year the lightest crew, stroked by Mr. Stelle and containing four of the best oars of the English eight, seems to have a slight edge.

These are the events for tomorrow. A summary of Sunday's events, including a forecast as to the outcome, will be published in THE CHINA PRESS sports section tomorrow

TINGLE DEFEATS YOUNG GONZALO IN 12 ROUND BOUT

Australian Easily Outpoints Filipino On Carlton Roof

BY WESTA

There was a fine breeze on Louie's rampageous roof last evening, thanks largely to Young Gonzalo, of Manila, who fanned the air with both arms for a solid hour in an effort to knock Billy Tingle into the race track. If any one of the million or more swings that he released had landed there is hardly a doubt that Mr. Tingle would have come to earth somewhere over in Frenchtown, but Billy was not at home when the Filipino windmill called to pay his compliments.

Which is another way of saying that Billy's educated legs were on the job last night, and when the Tingle underpinning is going full blast the other guy can no more land on him than the visitors' guide in a leper colony can retire on his tips.

Needless to say Billy won the bout on points.

It was a good bout, and yet there wasn't anything very exciting about it. This Gonzalo person had been rather highly touted by his manager and backers, but he isn't much; at least he didn't show much against Tingle. He seemed to have a vicious punch but the only guy who ever got anywhere by punching the empty air was old John K. Airplane or his distant cousin E. Lectric Fan.

A COOL EVENING

Billy went through this bout without having a glove laid on him. A whole flock of gloves whizzed by him at a speed of a million miles a minute, but Billy didn't mind that. "My seconds fanned me in my corner and Gonzalo fanned me in the ring, so I had a nice cool evening," said Billy after it was all over.

It was a sort of a hitless hitfest. Billy connected with Gonzalo's face several times with some left hooks, and planted some lusty rights into his midsection during the almost continuous periods of infighting, but that was about all. The blows were at too close range to do any great amount of harm, although they made the Filipino mad—so mad that he swung back a little wilder than usual. At times it was hard to tell whether he was aiming at Billy or the spot light above the ring.

The best part about last night's scrap was an announcement by the management that Tingle and Johnny Hill would meet in the near future. That ought to be a good scrap, as Hill showed a lot of stuff in his bout with Keenan some days ago.

HAS LOTS TO LEARN

This boy Gonzalo is well built and they say he is very young. That's a point in his favor, for he certainly will require a lot of time to learn what he needs to know about boxing. The only thing that can be said about his punches now is that they have a lot of variety. Yeh, some of them missed Billy by a foot whereas others were wide of the mark by at least a yard.

And yet it was an interesting scrap. A bout always is interesting when at least one of the scrappers gives indications of having a punch, and this boy certainly seems to have a punch, if he can ever get it tamed. Tingle, of course, is marvelously clever on defense, and it was a treat to see those wise legs of his carry him out of danger last night when the hard hitting Filipino boy got him into any kind of a situation that looked like it might contain an element of danger. On these occasions Billy simply vanished—faded away and left the Filipino there, punching at the ropes, or the posts, or Heaven knows what. Certainly not Billy.

There was a good crowd out, thus proving that the fans will appear if a high level of boxing is maintained. Unfortunately, the bouts were not as worth while as on the last two or three occasions, but that is just the hard luck of the occasional fan.

MANAGEMENT ERRS

The management pulled a terrible boner last night, and one for which somebody should have a good dressing down. Some of the patrons complained that when they asked the Chinese ticket seller for a three dollar pasteboard they were told that the three smacker seats were all gone and that only five dollar seats were left. This is rough stuff and will not be tolerated here. The explanation was that there was a shortage of three dollar tickets and that there was some "temporary confusion." It takes but very little of that sort of "temporary confusion" to sour the fans on the game. There certainly is plenty of time between boxing nights to get the tickets and seats in order and the management should make every effort to guard against a repetition of the error, particularly in view of the fact that boxing is only in the process of gaining a foothold here.

The preliminary card last night was not much. Kid Manila and Kid Willie fought four rounds to a draw, and in the semi final de la Cruz knocked Terrible Pete for a loop in the second round of what was scheduled as an eight round bout Mr. McCoy refereed very capably.

ONLY AMERICAN PLAYER PUT OUT AT ST. ANDREWS

Brown Defeated In Second Round; Spectator Falls Dead

(Reuter's Service)

London, May 28.—The resumption of play for the British Amateur Golf Championship at St. Andrews today took place in a drizzling rain, which fell almost throughout the day.

A tragic incident occurred this morning when a spectator following the American match dropped dead on a green.

Today's play reduced the field to 32 competitors.

J. Birnie (Inverness) defeated Brown, the only American player, 2, up and 1 to play, in the second round.

In the third round, Wethered, playing poorly, defeated Martin Schunk of Hale, 3 and 2; Tolley, in a brilliant display, beat last years semi-finalist, Douglas Grant (St. George's), 2 and 1. In a clashing of internationals, the Scot, John Caven, who has been brilliant since the start of the Championship, defeated the Englishman, Noel, 5 and 4. Braid defeated G. Humphries (Stourbridge) by one hole; the 1922 Champion, Holderness, beat Mahor Clarke, of Nairn, 6 and 4, while Robert Harris (Royal and Ancient) won from J. Board (Home Park), 2 and 1.

tions were financial failures.' We do not wish to go into detail because the task of preparing the technical and financial plans must be left entirely to the committee you will appoint to day for this purpose, but we wish to point out to those who are in doubt that no other city in the world has the favorable characteristics that Shanghai has for a World Exhibition.

GEOGRAPHICAL ADVANTAGE

"Shanghai's geographical position is unique. The watershed served by Shanghai harbor represents well over one-tenth of the population of the world. This population by its unflagging energies manages to maintain an economical standard far superior to that of many other parts of the world; an intelligent population open to everything new and interesting and consequently a certain supporter of the exhibition.

"It is not necessary to have lived long in Shanghai to know how rapidly the value of land increases. Any large plot of land, embodied in the plan of Greater Shanghai, improved for the use of the exhibition, is bound to increase in value and pay a great part of the cost.

"Mr. Charles C. Moore—President of the San Francisco Exhibition—has kindly sent us all the records of that great exhibition and the perusal of those interesting documents the committee will be easily convinced how Shanghai can make her exhibition pay.

"We suggest that each one present pledge himself to give the committee his moral support and his promise to render any help in the form of advice and information in order to facilitate its work.

"We are perfectly aware of the grave task facing the committee, but we are also confident that the enthusiasm of its members and the cordial support they will receive from all those farsighted men who see before them the great future of Shanghai and the great moral and material benefits that such an exhibition will bring to China and the rest of the world, will pave the way to a solution meeting unanimous approval."

DISCUSSION OPENED

Letters from several officials and individuals regretting inability to be present were noted by Mr. Bena, as well as one from Mr. Julean Arnold, American Commercial Attache, endorsing the idea and Dr. Chatley then called for discussion before any definite proposal was put.

Mr. A. de C. Sowerby, speaking for the project, said that Shanghai was primarily a commercial center—one of the largest—and in geographical position classified as one of the three greatest ports in the world, representing all of the Orient. Such an exposition as was proposed would be of utmost importance in all fields of commercial, industrial and scientific endeavor and these would benefit greatly by it. The exposition would draw Chinese from all parts of the country as well as visitors from the Occident and would do much to bring East and West together and develop a better understanding between the two. The benefits would be large even if the cost should exceed the receipts. He called attention to the intellectual side of the matter as particularly conducive to better understanding between East and West and was of opinion that exhibits covering the arts and sciences would go far toward strengthening the bond.

QUERIES ON FINANCE

Mr. A. Brooke-Smith then spoke. Most of those present, he presumed, would like to see such an exposition successfully carried through. But the question was a difficult one in a community such as this, which was not of one nationality, but consisted of several settlements and many nationalities. He had hoped that Mr. Bena would give an idea as to financing, but Mr. Bena had given no figures and had proposed that a committee be appointed to go into the pros and cons of the matter. If such a committee were appointed it would find itself confronted with great difficulties. An exposition of the size contemplated would require many millions before any returns could come to hand. How this was to be provided for he did not know, but he would like to hear Mr. Bena's ideas on the subject.

Mr. Bena replied that he had no definite financial plan ready, no plan for finding money in advance. A syndicate he believed could be formed to advance the needed expenses. It must be remembered, he said, that it would take at least five or six years to realise the exposition, and in that time a financial plan could be formed. The main thing for the proposed committee to do was to secure and prepare the land. They would have to go to the Settlement and Chinese authorities and must work with the idea of the Greater Shanghai in view. When the ground was ready all the participating nations would undoubtedly come forward in the financing of the exhibits. He was confident that the financial question would be easy to solve. The most difficult problem would be to secure the co-operation of the various nationalities.

GOVERNMENT AID?

Mr. Sowerby inquired if the Chinese Government were interested. Mr. Bena replied that the Chinese Government was planning an exhibition, but that it was rather up in the air. The Chekiang government would also probably join in the local project, according to Chinese report. Mr. Sowerby then suggested that the public might be given opportunity to subscribe to shares in the project.

Mr. N. Y. Chang, adviser to the Chinese Chamber of Commerce, but not officially representing that body, remarked that the present plan called for the exhibition to be a cosmopolitan affair, run by businessmen and not by the authorities. The Nanking exposition—referred to previously by Mr. Bena as a financial disaster owing to the disappearance of some $2,000,000—had been a government affair. Mr. Chang said he felt that if the Government would grant the land, that was about all that could be expected from this source. If the business men then took it up he believed it might be a success, but he suggested that the matter be laid before the various chambers of commerce for further threshing out.

WANT MORE DETAILS

Appointment of a body to investigate further into the proposition rather than to propose definite steps, was advocated by Major A. H. Hilton Johnson, representing the China Association. Finance would be a big problem and other problems would concern the securing of land, interprovincial rivalry and other things. He thought that an "exploratory" committee should be appointed as a preliminary to any further action.

Mr. A. J. Hughes strongly endorsed this suggestion, as did also Mr. E. M. Gull, of the British Chamber of Commerce, who said that if such a committee as was originally proposed were elected from this meeting it was rather jumping a stage. It seemed to him that something more definite should be put before the bodies invited to be represented at the meeting. Otherwise there would be the impression that the meeting definitely approved the project. The representative of the Italian Chamber of Commerce concurred.

After some further discussion Mr. Brooke-Smith proposed that Mr. Bena be instructed to write to the various national chambers of commerce asking that one representative of each be appointed to form a committee to assist him in making a preliminary study of the question of the exhibition.

Shriner Party To Attend Regatta

Shanghai Shriners, members of Nomad Oasis, are getting up a party to go to Henli Sunday, to attend the regatta and give encouragement to the American team. Johnny Potter has sent notices to this effect, but is anxious to have it known that a special car has been chartered and that all arrangements have been made to insure a good time.

The special car will leave the Shanghai North station at 8:10, Sunday morning, arriving at Henli 50 minutes later. Returning the train will leave at 5:30 arriving in Shanghai at 6:20. Food may be obtained on the train, or excursionists may take their own, as they wish.

Dr. Tagore Guest Of Indian Colony Here Yesterday

A reception in honor of Doctor Rabindranath Tagore was held yesterday afternoon in the premises of Messrs. Currimbhoy and Co., Limited, where the Indian Mosiem community of Shanghai were the hosts.

Mr. A. Hirji in a few well chosen words welcomed the honored guest, who, in replying, dwelt feelingly on his mission of unity for the peoples of the world. The ceremony was brief owing to the many engageiments of Doctor Tagore.

-:- Shanghai Rifle Association -:-

The twenty-third annual rifle meeting of the Shanghai Rifle Association was brought to a successful conclusion on Sunday, May 25, 1924. Mr. C. G. Hoh is the winner of the Grand Aggregate with 624 points, Dr. S. A. Ransom was second with 622 and Mr. W. E. Sauer third with 618.

Dr. Ransom since 1915 won four times the Grand Aggregate and twice second. He was second last year and again this year.

Mr. W. E. Sauer carries off the Grand Aggregate for short ranges competition and also first in the Ladies Prize.

The Members of the Executive Committee are to be congratulated for the excellent arrangements of handicaps that every competitor who shot in the meeting won a prize.

The duties of Secretary and Range Officer were ably carried out by Mr. A. M. Collaco in a most satisfactory manner.

A most valuable service rendered to the Association during the meeting by the members of Chinese Co. detailed to act as Register-Keepers. The nature of work they were called upon to carry out was very important and exacting, demanding close attention to duty over a long period, and it is a fine proof of the standard of discipline attained to be able to say that during the whole meeting, which covered some forty hours of shooting, no complaint of inaccuracy or inattention was received by the Range Officer on duty and Competitors.

The thanks of the Association are due to Colonel W. F. L. Gordon, Commandant S. V. C. and Headquarter Staff for the Range facilities to Capt. B. Y. Woo, Chinese Co. for his kindness in authorising and arranging for the services of the men under his command to act as Register-Keepers and also to the contributors of prize and other supporters of the Association, with particular reference to annual rifle meeting Prize Fund.

Following are the results:

OLD BILL'S
Adventures in America
by Bruce Bairnsfather.

Bill's Vamp

I THOUGHT it would happen; in fact, I didn't quite see how it could be avoided. Old Bill has been "vamped." It was altogether too much to expect; to take Bill all over the country, past enormous Pacific Coast Vamp Factories, and arrive back in our rooms at the Y.M.C.A. without a scratch.

I should never have known it if I hadn't seen the usual symptoms breaking out on Old Bill like a rash.

I had occasion to go into his bedroom the other morning, and before he could hide it I caught sight of a photograph reclining against the looking glass on his dressing table. There are, of course, many kinds of photographs; but this one one was a hundred per cent. It was the photograph of a woman with eyes like melting toffee and lids to them like a couple of blue umbrellas. It was only a head and shoulders, but with clear indications that—had the picture proceeded further—the law would have jailed the photographer.

"Who is this, Bill?" I asked, taking the picture up in my hands.

"That, Captain? Why, that's Senora Sarsaparilla; you know, she's in that film, 'Hashed Souls.'"

"When and how did you meet her, Bill?"

"We met in a drug store, Captain. She hadn't got a straw for her ice cream soda, so I lent her mine. Then she said, 'Good afternoon!' and I said, 'Very likely!' and there you are."

"You'll be there, all right, Bill, if you aren't careful."

And then came out a whole lot of words from Bill, which are the sure signs of a vamp patient.

"You know, she don't seem like other women, Captain. She's so simple and nice—you wouldn't believe! She doesn't like rioting around, spending money and havin' dinners and dancin' and all that. She would just be happy in a small cottage with a dime a week—feeding chickens.

"I explained to her, of course, Captain, that I couldn't take on the contract, but that I would recommend her to friends."

"Well, when did you last see her, Bill? Is it all over now?"

"What do you mean by 'all over,' Captain? I saw her only yesterday. She had to go to the depot to pay some excess on a crate of chickens she had ordered and had forgotten her purse, so I lent her mine—ten dollars; all I had. She's payin' me back tomorrow."

* * * * * * *

Perhaps a short paragraph from "Want Ads" in the "California Herald and Calculator" will best express the rest of the sad story:

"Money. Wanted $10 lent in a purse to a Spanish beauty with love for chickens. 'Sucker,' 25th Floor, Sap Bldg."

* * * * * * * *

This ad now has cost Bul $9.50 and he has had no answer.

Below AUGUSTUS JOHN & ANDREW MELLON

President Coolidge, in a letter to the Senate, sharply criticised the actions of the committee headed by Senator James Couzens, of Michigan, in endeavoring to secure information regarding the income taxes of every company in which Secretary of the Treasury Andrew J. Mellon is interested. U. S. Senator Samuel Shortridge, of California, narrowly escaped the fate of Senator Frank L. Greene, of Vermont, who was shot in the head by a dry agent in chasing a bootlegging suspect. Mr. Shortridge was in the line of fire when Detective Ogle fired at another bootlegger. He asserted that when he remonstrated with the detective he was told "to shut up or be run in." Augustus John, noted English portrait painter, arriving in New York for another tour, gave the palm to America, and especially to New York City, for wonderful architecture.

Gen. Adelbert Ames

General Adelbert Ames, famous veteran of the Civil War, now in his 89th year, has been John D. Rockefeller's constant companion on the golf links at Ormond, Fla., for the past 20 years. This is the first photograph he has ever permitted to be taken. General Ames, who lives in Ormond Beach, where Mr. Rockefeller has a Winter home, has issued a challenge for a 36-hole match with any man of his age in the world.

FINANCIAL AND TRADE ARTICLE

PRICE FOR WOOD OIL IS SLIGHTLY IMPROVED

Recent Sales Give Quotations Boost

STEADY IN U. S.

Exports This Year Expected To Drop

In consequence of recent sales, the prices of wood oil have advanced slightly in the Shanghai and Hankow markets. Sales at Tls. 30 per picul for the best grade have been reported, although prices for the past six weeks have averaged about Tls. 24 per picul. The American and European markets for this article, however, are dull with small sales being effected.

During a recent week, 1,096 piculs of oil were exported from Hankow to Shanghai, the rest of China taking about 4,000 piculs, and 157 piculs going to America. According to a report from Hankow, political conditions in the wood oil producing districts are somewhat improved, and there are prospects for an increase of production.

A late report from New York says that among the vegetable oils, China wood is steadier, though no material change had occurred in prices. The Hankow market was said to be steady, with offerings light. Business in American market continued quiet. Consumers were generally disposed to hold aloof from the market, pending further developments in the situation.

While the American market seemed to have a somewhat steadier tone, variations in price, however, were slight. The consuming demand failed to show any improvement, and there were few transactions reported among dealers. Several small lots were reported to have sold on spot at G. $0.15 per pound in cooperage, and for June-July arrivals at the same figure.

AMERICAN QUOTATIONS

There was an absence of developments of importance in the primary situation. Quotations prevailing in the American market at the close of a recent week were as follows (quotations in gold):—Spot, barrels, 15c. per pound; tanks, 13¾c. per pound. May arrivals, barrels 15c. per pound; tanks, 13¾c. per pound.

Wood oil exports from China to the United States for 1924 apparently will be far below the figure for 1923, which was exceptionally high. China is practically the only source of supply for wood oil for the United States. The value of the imports of this commodity increased from G. $7,891,000 in 1922 to G. $13,397,000 in 1923. The growing dependence of the United States upon China for this most essential ingredient in the manufacture of paints, varnishes, etc., was indicated by the increased demand.

The calender year 1923 also was a record one in the export of South China wood oil from Hongkong. As shown from the Government statistics, 13,545,067 pounds were exported from that port, of which 7,593,183 pounds found its way to the United States. The total exportation for the year was regarded as the highest to date, although in 1920 the United States purchased 6,078,933 out of a total of 10,079,333 pounds.

HIGH SALES MARK

The sales to the United States reached their highest volume in December, 1923, notwithstanding that the price was higher than in the earlier part of the year. At the beginning of 1923, the market opened at an average price of 23 to 24 Hongkong dollars per picul, and rose in May from 39 to 42 dollars. Toward the end of the year, the price closed at 32 to 33 dollars per picul (net oil). The price in United States currency rose from $0.11 per pound to $0.21, and toward the close of the year the level was $0.19.

The excellent demand for South China wood oil was attributed to the greater difficulty experienced in obtaining supplies at Hankow, on account of the severe fighting in that region of Central China, and also because of the poor crop of nuts from which the oil is produced. The wood oil exported from Hankow is preferred by the users abroad, but exports from that port began falling off in 1923, and importers in foreign countries looked to Hongkong for their requirements.

The record made by Hongkong in 1923 has been somewhat of a stimulus to the Hankow market. It is said that producers at the Yangtsze port will take advantage of the lull in fighting, increase production and try to regain some of Hankow's lost business in wood oil.

Freight Market

Messrs. Wheelock and Co. state in their current freight market report:

There is little or no change to report on the situation of our export markets to Europe and America. However, with the opening of the tea season, prospects look brighter although it is still too early to gauge the amount of the crop. Continuous rains and cold weather are reported to have adversely affected the crop.

Coastwise:—The past fortnight has brought no improvement in the chartering market. At present there is very little business being done in any direction and prospects for the near future are not bright.

Canton Insurance Office

Bad trade, low rates and ever-increasing competition was the theme of the speech of the Chairman at the forty-third ordinary meeting of the Canton Insurance Office, Ltd., held at the offices of the General Managers, Messrs. Jardine, Matheson and Co., Ltd., Hongkong, on May 23. Mr. D. B. F. Beith presided.

CHAIRMAN'S SPEECH

The Secretary having read the notice convening the meeting, the Chairman said:—Gentlemen.—The report and accounts having now been in your hands for some days, I propose, with your permission, to follow the usual custom of taking them as read. The account for the year 1922, which we now present to you, has proved quite a satisfactory one and this in spite of the continuance of bad trade, low rates and ever increasing competition. Again, however, this year we show a very considerable decrease in premium income, that for the year now under review being $3,303,424.81 as compared with $4,033,849.08 for the year 1921. This continued falling off in income is a disturbing factor and one that is exercising the minds of your General Agents and Consulting Committee. It is a comparatively simple matter to obtain business, but where and how to acquire business of a remunerative nature is an entirely different proposition. We are not alone in this respect, as the reports of practically all Marine Insurance Companies show that their incomes are now back to a pre-war level, if not rather worse. In this connection, it may not be out of place for me to quote to you an extract from an able article on the matter of marine rates that recently appeared in one of our leading shipping journals:—"With regard to the important question of premium it may be said that, broadly speaking, the conditions which prevailed in 1921 and 1922 continued during the whole of the past year, and rates, whenever altered, have without exception tended downwards, and at the moment of writing have attained a figure below which a prudent underwriter will abstain from venturing. If in the near future losses and casualties occur with the same frequency (in proportion to the bulk at risk) as they did in the years immediately preceding the war, underwriters will, I fear, discover that they have been providing insurance considerably below cost price." Although there is no cause for pessimism, I think you will appreciate from what I have just said that we have our troubles and difficulties like everyone else in these lean times.

Although the accounts show decreases in premium income and interest for the year 1922 of $730,424.27 and $22,512.28 respectively, it will be seen that the result after 24 months' working is some $15,000 better than that for the year 1921, the reason for this being the much improved loss ratio of 54.99 per cent as compared with 63.54 per cent. Working Account for the year 1923, after 12 months' working also shows a fall in premium income of approximately $450,000 and the balance of $2,120,923.63 carried forward is consequently less by $231,451.78 than that for the year 1922 at the same period. This account has yet far to go, but we see no present reason to fear that the ultimate result will be otherwise than well up to the standard of its predecessors.

Our assets, as expressed in sterling, stand at a higher figure by £82,000 than a year ago and as expressed in local currency, they show an increase of over $285,000. The satisfactory state of various Reserves at December 31 1922 has been more than maintained. The surplus to be dealt with is $1,368,319.45 out of which has been paid an interim dividend of $18 per share. We now recommend the payment of a final dividend of $22, the addition of £25,000 to Sterling Reserve Fund, of $250,000 to Reinsurance Fund and the carrying of the balance of $503,072.81 to Underwriting Suspense Account to close the year 1922. The balance of $2,120,923.63 at credit of 1922 Account allows of the payments of the usual Interim Dividend of $18 for the year.

During the past year, losses have been below the normal and there have been none of outstanding magnitude. This does not, of course include the earthquake in Japan of last September or the typhoons exceptional violence which visited Hongkong on August 18. Although seven months have elapsed since the first disaster occurred, the sum of loss is yet far from complete owing to the enormous task of ascertaining the relative liability attaching to fire and marine insurance. In these two calamities, our losses, though naturally considerable, were no more than we might reasonably expect and much less than we at first anticipated. I do not think there is anything further that calls for special reference, but I shall be pleased to answer, to the best of my ability, any questions arising out of the accounts which shareholders may wish to put, after the accounts themselves have been duly seconded.

I now propose the following resolution:—"That the Report and Accounts, as presented, including the payment of a final dividend in respect of the year 1922 of $22 per share, and an interim dividend in respect of the year 1923 of $18 per share; the addition of £25,000 to Sterling Reserve Fund, of $250,000 to Reinsurance Fund and $505,072.81 to Underwriting Surpense Account be adopted and passed."

The resolution was seconded by Mr. Ho Fook and unanimously agreed to.

BUSINESS MATTERS

On the proposition of the Hon. Mr. Chan Siu-ki, seconded by Mr. Lo Cheung-shiu, Sir Paul Chater, Sir Robert Ho Tung, and Messrs. A. H. Compton, A. S. Gubbay, H. Humphreys, T. E. Pearce and H. P. White, together with the Chairman of the Company, were re-elected the Consulting Committee for the ensuing year.

Mr. H. Percy Smith and the Hon. Mr. A. R. Lowe were re-elected auditors at a remuneration of $750 each, on the proposition of Mr. Greenhill, seconded by Mr. Stevenson.

Supplied By All Chemists

Physicians prescribe Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy because it relieves cramps in the stomach and intestinal pains quicker than any preparation they can compound. It can be bought from any chemist. A bottle will keep for years and no home is complete without it. Sold everywhere.

Coal Market

Messrs. Wheelock and Co. state in their current coal market reports

Japan Coal:—Since last writing, there has been only a little business done with native dealers, and generally the tone of the market is dull although exchange continues favorable to buyers, but, with the approach of the hot season, it is only to be expected that the market should slacken off somewhat.

Fushun Coal:—No change.

Fuchung Anthracite:—No change.

Kaiping Coal:—Deliveries continue on a fairly large scale with the result that stocks remain small. Slack coal is especially in demand and the price of the better grades remains quite firm.

TIENTSIN LEADS N CHINA IN PIECE. GOODS IMPORTS

Develops Into Important Distributing Center For Northwest

Being a distributing center for the northwestern provinces, Tientsin leads the other ports in North China in the import of piece goods. From Tientsin shipments of imported piece goods find their way to the remote parts of the Northwest, including Mongolia. Plain cotton prints form the most important item of Tientsin's imported piece goods. In 1920, 462,382 pieces valued at Tls. 1,970,668 entered the port. In the following year the figure was 159,049 pieces valued at Tls. 803,062 and in 1922, 285,260 pieces valued at Tls. 1,578,241. Little cotton prints are turned out by the Chinese cotton mills. The bulk is imported from Japan, though some come from Europe and America. About 120,000 pieces of cotton prints are estimated to be consumed yearly on the Tientsin local market at an average retail price of a little over five taels apiece.

Next in importance are plain lastings. In 1920, according to the customs returns, 225,427 pieces valued at Tls. 1,762,151, not including the figured variety of which Tientsin's import figure is comparatively insignificant, were imported into the port. In 1921 the figure was 302,594 pieces valued at Tls. 1,036,114 and in 1922, 348,853 pieces valued at Tls. 2,523,682. Tientsin piece goods dealers classify imported lastings into two grades. The higher grade imported from Europe and America with a yearly total of about 40,000 pieces is consumed chiefly on the local market. The lower grade of Japanese-made lastings are mostly transshipped to the interior for the market in Shensi, Kansu, and Mongolia. The yearly import figure of the Japanese variety is about twice that of the higher grade. Chinese cotton mills in Shanghai are also turning out a certain quantity of this fabric for the home market.

MARKET FOR POPLIN

Poplin of the figured variety used to form an important item in Tientsin's imported piece goods in pre-war times. But in recent years there has been a steady falling-off. These are the figures for recent years:—1920, 24,259 pieces valued at Tls. 267,598; 1921, 9,203 pieces valued at Tls. 129,006; and 1922, 15,072 pieces valued at Tls. 263,200. This fabric finds a good market in the northwestern provinces and the bulk imported from Tientsin is disposed of in those provinces. Before the war the supply was obtained almost entirely from Western countries, but lately Japanese goods are gradually replacing the European or American variety on the Tientsin market. A steady increase in the import of the Japanese variety has been recorded in the past few years. Of the 220,073 pieces that formed the total net import of 1920, 87,950 pieces came from Japan. In the year the amount of the Japanese made variety was 69,091 pieces and in 1922 it rose to 157,549 pieces. People prefer the Japanese-made variety because it is cheaper and looks better.

Among other kinds of piece goods imported into Tientsin, crape, broadcloth and certain kinds of mercerised cotton fabrics may be mentioned. A kind of mixed cloth has recently become very fashionable among high class Chinese, and some enterprising Chinese cotton mills are already helping to meet the demand. Tientsin imports a rather limited quantity of this cloth from Western countries, the bulk being obtained from Japan and from the Chinese cotton mills in Shanghai and other centers in the South. This is not the variety made of pure wool which comes from Western countries and commands a higher price, but a cotton mixture or imitation. To this class belongs almost all the Japanese and Chinese manufactures. They find a ready market in Tientsin.

Indians Hostile To Services Measure

(Reuter's Service)

Simla, May 28.—Service circles and the Anglo-Indian press express the opinion that the report of the Royal Commission, presided over by Viscount Lee, favoring the Indianisation of the superior Civil Service in India, offers a satisfactory solution of the question of the position of the Services, but doubt the success of the experiment of recruiting for the Services in the provinces by Indian Ministers and their rapid Indianisation. The Indian press unanimously condemns the report on the ground that it gives overwhelming and uncalled for concessions to the Services. Indian Members of the Legislative Assembly are also hostile. They propose to move a resolution in this connection.

The Next President Of The United States!

ACCORDING to one political observer, there are only three certain factors in the political situation in the United States today. One is that the Republican National Convention will convene in Cleveland, Ohio, on June 10 next. Another is that the Democrats will hold their national Convention to nominate a candidate for the Presidency in New York City on June 24. And the third certainty is that President Coolidge will be the nominee of the Republicans. Everything else is uncertain and although betting in New York favors the Republicans as victors in the next national campaign, it is still too early to forecast anything except tendencies.

That President Coolidge will be the candidate of the Republicans is now a foregone conclusion for the simple reason that he already has a sufficient number of pledged delegates to assure victory. But whether his nomination will be followed by re-election to the highest office in the land of America is another question which is surrounded by many uncertain elements, the most uncertain of which is Senator La Follette of Wisconsin, who easily carried his own state delegation and who has threatened to start a movement for a third party. Whether the Republicans can hold all of the discontented and independent elements in line is a question which is taxing the party leaders. Senators Johnson of California and Borah of Idaho are, of course, important factors in this connection.

From the standpoint of the Democrats, Mr. McAdoo apparently has survived his "legal" connection with the so-called "oil scandal" and is still in the running. His chief characteristic of persistence and optimism when the odds are against him seemingly has stood him in good stead and today he is the most promising candidate prior to the convention. It will be remembered that in the midst of the oil investigation conducted by the Senate a few weeks ago Mr. McAdoo was charged with having received a rather handsome retainer fee from one of the oil operators who was under investigation charged with responsibility for the derelictions of one of the members of former President Harding's Cabinet. The charge against Mr. McAdoo was thought at first to have eliminated him from the race for the Democratic nomination, but calmer judgment has shown that he had nothing whatever to do with the naval oil lease question. Therefore the illustrious son-in-law of Woodrow Wilson is still in the race.

But while Mr. McAdoo is in a leading position, he is not assured of the nomination by any manner of means because of the rule in the Democratic Convention that a candidate must be able to control two-thirds of the delegates present in order to obtain the coveted plum. This may result in a long deadlock, and if this happens, anything may happen as far as the nomination is concerned. Other Democratic favorites are Senator Underwood, who has announced his retirement but who still has strength, Mr. John W. Davis, former Ambassador to Great Britain under the latter part of the Wilson Administration and a native of West Virginia, and then there is Governor Al Smith of New York. Governor Smith at first did not attract much attention as a Presidential possibility, but he has developed strength wonderfully in recent months and weeks. The holding of the convention in New York City is supposed to be of help to him. Some say that Governor "Al" is likely to wink the other eye on the subject of a strict enforcement of the Volstead Act, and this, combined with the holding of the convention in New York, which is anything but enthusiastic over prohibition enforcement, leads into all kinds of speculation. Senator James A. Reed, of Missouri, was also a possibility for the Democrats but he lost his state delegation to McAdoo. So, to sum it all up for the Democrats the only certain element in their situation is the uncertainty. The Republican platform is quite likely to consist of Mr. Coolidge, and Mr. Coolidge alone. The Republicans came into power four years ago with such a large and overwhelming majority that it looked like a revolution and then—according to their enemies at least—they abused their powers. The oil scandal will be a hard thing to overcome, especially out in the West and Northwest, where there is great discontent due to the low prices prevailing for farm products, chiefly wheat. This has been due to well recognised economic causes, but in America people often vote with their hearts instead of their heads, as they do everwhere else in the world, and the farmer who went bankrupt because he couldn't sell his wheat is likely to charge the Republicans with complete responsibility.

In addition to the above political picture, there is Congress and its effect upon the coming election. The passage of the Soldiers' Bonus Bill will both help and hurt the Republicans. The business and financial interests of the nation didn't want the Bonus which saddles the country with an added indebtedness of something like G.$4,000,000,000, but the millions of former soldiers who have wanted the bonus now have it and every one of them is a voter and they are well organised locally and nationally in the American Legion. One political observer credits the Republicans with excellent strategy in the handling of the Bonus. Congress passed the law and the President vetoed it. Then Congress passed it over the President's veto. Congressmen can return home to their districts and say, "We gave you the Bonus." The Republican organisation will say, "We have an independent President who tried to kill the Bonus but Congress passed it over his veto." The Republicans get full credit for it anyway! So that's that! Then there is the vital subject of taxation. The move to reduce the burdensome income taxes is still before Congress although it is difficult to see how Congress is going to manage a reduction in taxes while at the same time adding a new four billion dollar Bonus debt to the national expenditures. Nevertheless congress is apparently trying to do just this impossible thing. The President's signature to the Immigration Law containing Japanese exclusion is certain to have political consequences and is bound to help within the ranks of organised labor. This was the great political influence behind immigration restriction and Japanese exclusion, and by signing the measure President Coolidge undoubtedly has assured himself of support in the important Pacific Coast States and also in the ranks of union labor in the more thickly populated industrial centers in the East.

A few months ago it looked like a straight-clean-cut fight between conservative Republicanism led by Coolidge and liberal-progressive Democracy under McAdoo, but the situation has become considerably mixed since those days. All must agree that the situation is much more complicated now and uncertain—and the national conventions are but a few days in the future!

Flirting With Bolshevism

IN view of the categorical declaration of M. Zinovieff at the Communist Congress that "the payment of debts by Russia is an impossibility" and the divergence of views at the London Conference with regard to the satisfaction of claims against Russia, it is not surprising that the Earl of Mayo should have given expression to the sentiment that flirting with Bolshevism does not commend itself to the British Empire. At Tuesday's proceedings of the Conference, the British delegation declared that it was unable to accept the statement made by the Soviet delegation at the meeting on May 20 to the effect that Russia could not undertake to pay the prewar debts in full, with back interest. The British delegates, at the same time, disclaimed any desire to be unreasonable and did not propose that the debts should be paid in full and immediately. The repudiation of any such intentions on the part of Great Britain is significant because it will divest the Soviet Government of the excuse that the responsibility will be Great Britain's in the event of the present Conference being wrecked.

The Soviet delegates, emphasising the crippled state of the finances of Russia, point out the latter's great efforts in the War and her subsequent trials, including famine. As to Russia's role in the Great War, none will deny that she turned the scale in favor of the Allies at a critical period of the conflict and that her soldiers fought as valiantly as those of any other land. The tragedy of it is that the brave Russian Army was betrayed while its task was still unfinished and that the country which was the first to mobilise following the Sarajevo episode should have been the first to retire from the fray. It was a major catastrophe both for Russia and for her one-time Allies that the success which crowned the Russian arms should have been stultified by premature withdrawal from the War. All the subsequent trials which the people of Russia have been undergoing, including the terrible ravages of famine and disease, may be traced to that dark hour in the nation's history when the people fondly mistook Bolshevism for liberty and progress, for, as the world knows, the transition from Tsarism to Bolshevism was nothing but a change of masters—the replacement of one despotism by an infinitely worse despotism. Bolshevism spelt the negation of all political, social and economic laws. Small wonder that, after less than seven years of the dismal experiment, the Russian Government should be striving hard for the recognition of the Powers whom it not long ago was upbraiding and seeking credit from the very nations whose money the Soviet Administration at one time regarded as tainted.

The most remarkable thing about Soviet politics is that the Russian delegates now discussing recognition and finance with the British Government are not receiving the most effective support from the men at home. Mr. Trotsky, in what is naively described as a "subdued" speech at the Communist Party Conference, affirmed his solidarity with the rest of the party. He says that he regards himself as a private soldier and discipline is necessary in the stand against what he is pleased to term Russia's "enemies." But whether he is a private or a commander, his recent utterances against the country from which Russia is now seeking favors do not particularly reveal a sense of discipline but rather an appalling sense of irresponsibility and lack of discipline. There can be no explaining away of Leon Trotsky as a member of the Soviet Government. It is he who has openly declared that he does not think much of Britain's Labor Government on general principles; that Mr. MacDonald is guilty of suppressing "the struggle for freedom in Afghanistan;" and that "we are going to help the Eastern peoples shake off the yoke of foreign domination."

Such notice served on Great Britain in respect to India is not conducive to the best understanding among the London conferees. It is true that Trotsky has made use of the familiar Communist formula about opportune occasions and inopportune times. This Red Army will be held in leash when the outlook is unfavorable. It will be let loose when the chances for standing Europe on its head are promising. This doctrine may give satisfaction at Moscow but is likely to raise doubts in London, where the latest cables tell us a feeling prevails that the present negotiations be brought to as speedy a termination as possible. Making peace and establishing trade relations with a Government which announces that it is going to take advantage of the first dark night is an arduous undertaking. As a matter of fact, the pace of negotiations in London has been deliberate. And the reason is that both sides want time. The Soviet delegates want time for the Moscow orators to tire themselves out and be forgotten. Mr. MacDonald wants a little time to see just whom he has recognised. The British Labor Government recognised the Soviet for tactical reasons having much to do with political considerations. Once that step was taken, it was not to Mr. MacDonald's interest to rush his people up against the cold Russian realities. The slower the discussion with the Soviet delegates the better. And they are apt to become more and more deliberate if Moscow continues to serve notice of what it will do in India and Afghanistan when the time seems "opportune."

Just A Press Canard

WRITING a few days ago on the subject of the "death ray," we remarked that there was no need to regard the discovery with any degree of dismay, confident in the fact that science would eventually find means of meeting whatever ill effects it might have. Latest reports on the matter indicate that whatever Mr. Grindell Mathews has discovered, it certainly is not the sinister agency it was originally claimed to be, and there is more than a possibility that the hectic imaginations of certain press writers have been endeavoring to lead the British Government into purchasing a regular "pig in a poke" with the further delightful possibility that it is a very small pig. Instead of being a terrible death-dealing agency, which alone would justify the name given it, the invention seems to be capable only of performing very mediocre tricks, of lighting an electric lamp, and stopping a small motor cycle engine at a distance of fifteen yards. The offer of the British Government to pay £1,000 if Mr. Mathews could successfully meet a test of its own devising, was, to say the least, generous. If his discovery could do what enthusiastic reporters claimed for it, the £1,000 was a clear gift to the discoverer. If it could not, the Government would have laid a wild story by the heels, and at the same time have saved its money. Mr. Mathews refused the offer, and the test we have mentioned above was of his own choosing.

We have no doubt that eventually the wireless transportation of power will become an accomplished and economic fact, that our investigations along these lines will ultimately provide the world with discoveries of untold value. But what Mr. Mathews has given us up to the present seems very poor stuff indeed. Had his ray demolished the electric light bulb, or torn a hole through the metal of the engine, even at so short a distance as fifteen yards, there might have been something to say for the extravagant claims made for his discovery; but instead of its being a destructive agency, it seems to be endowed with the most beneficent qualities. The name seems to be a most unfortunate misnomer, and the whole incident an unhappy example of misplaced enthusiasm.

Russians In Tsingtao

WE in Shanghai will naturally have some sympathy with the authorities in Tsingtao in the trouble they have over the Russian community settled within their border. That there are too many refugees in the port it is not hard to believe, for the further north we go, the more are to be found, without work, without food, and dependent upon a charity which is burdened with a large and persistent demand. In Shanghai we are faced with the same trouble, but it speaks well for this port, and for the Russians that have settled here, that we are more or less able to deal with them and their wants, and they are on the whole more law-abiding than is usually to be expected of people in such dire distress. The difficulty of finding employment for these people is, we believe, no more grave in Tsingtao than in Shanghai—exactly the same degree of impossibility attends the matter in both places. But we have yet to learn that any measure of success can attend the determination of the Tsingtao authorities to banish these unfortunates, if they cannot find work or drive them out of the city. We suppose the greater part of them would be only too anxious to find that work which is now made a condition precedent to their remaining in the city, but as matters stand they are faced with imminent banishment to places possibly worse for them than Tsingtao despite the poverty which they endure.

At the same time, realising how hard is the lot of these people, and remembering the responsibilities of the officials, it cannot be gainsaid that something has to be done. Were banishment does nothing. It drives these indigents from one place to another without any prospect of relief for their troubles. Deportation to Siberia may, on the other hand, prove somewhat better, providing they are able to return there without danger of being persecuted by their own people in authority over them for the political opinions which their flight would seem to indicate. The remedy seems to be in the prevention of these people coming into China at all pending the decision of the League of Nations, which recently appointed investigators to consider the lot of the 60,000 Russians at present destitute in this country. If they have to be repatriated, it should be under some form of safeguard which will ensure a peaceful continuation of their lives, and the possibility of obtaining work, but in the meantime, until the League has devised some scheme for meeting the difficulty, we would suggest that the greatest forbearance be displayed towards them. They may not have won the war for us, but it is clear that had it not been for the enormous sacrifices of these people in the early stages of hostility, there would have been no war for any of us to have won.

Good Taste In Dressing

FRESHENING UP THE WORN DRESS

I have more than once wondered just why it is that a man will, if he must, be contented with two suits, one for best, and one for every day; while we women are constantly sighing for "new gowns to conquer." But I have finally come to the conclusion there are two reasons for this masculine attitude. In the first place, men's suits are usually dark, and of course much plainer than our gay frocks, and in the second, they can effect apparent changes of costumes by means of different neckties and shirts.

Yet after I reach this profound conclusion, I am no nearer solving the problem of clothes for women and their reasons for wanting so many changes. We like lots of pretty things, well, just because we do. And that's sufficient reason for any sane, normal woman; now, isn't it?

So my task is to see how extra things may be had without too much expense for the slender purse. And the angle with which I am most concerned just now is that of the worn frock that is too good to be discarded entirely, and yet which is quite defmitely no longer fresh.

I can advance no feminine Einstein theory in the matter. Nor can I lay claim to any new and remarkable discovery. But perhaps I can jot down a few points that may be of help in going over that old dress.

First and foremost a plain frock can assume quite a different air if it be thoroughly cleaned and pressed. Then, when it emerges looking ever so much more presentable, little touches can be added that will do wonders for it. Let us say that you have been wearing it with white collars and cuffs. How would it be to adventure among dresstrimming remnants? Sometimes one can pick up a lovely bit of broad braid or embroidery in colors that could be made into new collar and cuffs. The entire dress would take on a changed appearance with this comparatively small and inexpensive alteration.

Never throw away scraps of material

With a frock that is worn and spotted in the blouse but of which the skirt is still good there is another plan of campaign. Why not combine the skirt with a silk blouse of a color that matches or blends nicely? I sometimes think that one can find better values in blouses now than in almost any other article of clothing. Very effective figured silk blouses can be ferreted out at small prices if one be a good shopper. (I am referring to those that extend below the waistline, which give the suggestion of a dress rather than of a shirt waist and skirt.)

Another plan that often works well with a frock in which the skirt is badly worn, particularly if the frock be a silk one made on straight lines, is to cut the frock about three to four inches below the waist. Then buy a yard and half of cloth of a color that matches. Cut this half, and sew the two halves together, making the width the same as the width of the upper silk part. Sew this on to the blouse at that three-or-four-inches-below the waistline which you have allowed for, and you have a silk and cloth frock that is both comfortable and smart. An added touch may be effected by using the straight pieces you have cut from the sides of your cloth for collar and broad cuffs. A metal or silk girdle will give the finishing touch and, to all intents and purposes, you have a brand-new costume.

Last of all, never throw away scraps of material. You never know when they may come in handy for new touches on an old dress.

Get out that dress that has been hanging neglected in the closet, and with these suggestions in mind, see if you can freshen it up a bit!

COLIC AND ITS CAUSE

How Baby's Own Tablets Cure It

Colic is a common complaint with children, due to gas in the stomach and bowels. The child cries out suddenly, refuses to be quieted, and draws the legs up close to the body. Sometimes it is accompanied by nausea, vomiting and fever.

Baby's Own Tablets, the Canadian children's stomach and bowel remedy, quickly relieve the pains of colic, dispel the gas which is its cause, and bring natural, restful sleep to the little sufferer.

Mrs. James Hargraves, of Fall River, Mass., U. S. A., writes: "Baby's Own Tablets have done wonders for my little one. She was troubled with wind colic, and nothing helped her until we got Baby's Own Tablets. These relieved her and cured the trouble almost at once. I would not be without them."

Medicine vendors sell Baby's Own Tablets, or post free, 60 cents per vial ($3 for 6) from Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., 60 Kiangse Road, Shanghai.

EXCERPTS FROM GREAT WRITERS

POVERTY

The other day I met one of those all too common persons, a Poor Rich Man. He owned several farms, besides houses in town, stocks and bonds in the vault, and money in the bank.

Yet he was Poor. He had the essence of Poverty in his mind. Because he was afraid he might come to want, because he was suspicious of everybody, because he worried over his possessions, and because he wanted more.

For Poverty is not lack of things; it's a state of mind.

Rich folks are not they who have abundance, but they who feel abundance. As a man thinketh, so is he.

You are rich only when money doesn't worry you. And if you have only two dollars, and don't fret over what you do not have, you are richer than the man who has two million dollars and can't sleep o' nights because he hasn't four million dollars.

Poverty is not lack; it is the pressure of lack.

Poverty is in the Mind; not in the pocket.

This Poor Rich Man I spoke of was fretting over the grocer bills, and the cost of ice and gas and electricity. He was fighting to keep down the wages of the servants. It hurt him when his wife wanted money. He complained because his daughters spent so much. The demands of his workmen for more wages pained him like a sore toe. He haggled over the price of everything he bought.

In fine, he had every last one of the symptoms and inconveniences of Poverty that his washerwoman had. And more. And if he felt the pangs of Poverty, and if money worried him, and made him miserable, can you tell me what difference there is between him and a hobo?

The only use of money is to give you ease and comfort, to drive away your fears, and enable you to live in spiritual freedom. If it does not that, then, no matter how rich they may call you, you are poor.

And, if you can have that feeling of freedom, that sure belief in tomorrow, that sense of abundance, which money is supposed to bring, but hardly ever does bring, and if you can have all this just by using your will power, and changing your attitude of mind, in other words, by Rich thinking, which is easily attained, instead of by Accumulation, which is slow and laborious and uncertain, isn't this "the more excellent way?"

Think on this! If you want to be Rich, why, BE RICH: it's easier than GETTING RICH. Try it.

The Festival Of Lost Dreams

How would it do to institute a festival of lost dreams!

On some placid lake, such as Lake Geneva, there would be held every year a fete, at which those who had lost their dream could go about in little boats fishing for it.

The idea is borrowed from the dragon boat festival, held in some parts of China on the fifth day of the fifth moon, in honor of the poet Chu Yuan who lived 2,000 years ago towards the close of the Chou dynasty. The poet came under the disfavor of his royal patron and was banished to the hills. He drowned himself in the river Mi Lo, and in spite of the search made for his body it was never found.

Once a year the disillusioned among us might thus celebrate the dream we once had.

The Kaiser would paddle about searching for his lost dream of world power, and Woodrow Wilson looking into the muddy waters of partisanship where sank his dream of world unity.

In one boat would be the sot and the harlot recalling their dream of respectability.

In another boat the cynic would search again for his abandoned faith.

In another the old university tutor, eking out a meager living by giving private lessons, would look for the dream he once had of being a distinguished cavant.

In another would be the middleaged musician, sadness and failure upon his face, compelled these days to earn a pittance playing a minor part in an orchestra, once having had brilliant hopes of being a great virtuoso.

In another boat an actor his hair graying and his face lined with dissipation, forced now to make a precarious living by taking such minor parts as are offered him, has come to celebrate this festival by looking for the dream he once had of being a world famous star.

In another is the woman looking for her lost dream of purity.

All over the lake would swarm the people, most of them middleaged and past, gazing into the waters and endeavoring to find again, if but for a fleeting moment, these last dreams of riches, of fame, of contentment, of self-respect, of ambition, of loyalty, of political success, of business prosperity, of spiritual excellence and of love.

For of lot dreams the number is as the fishes of the sea, or the sands of the shore, or the stars above them. There be lost dreams great and lost dreams small.

But the greatest of these is Love.

Shipping News

JAPAN'S SHIPPING STILL IS IN GRIP OF DEPRESSION

Increase Of 117 Tramp Vessels Makes New Record

With a decrease of 96 Japanese tramp steamers on the trans-Pacific service and with an increase of 117 ships on the near-sea service, a situation never known in the country's shipping circles before, depression generally marks the leading freight services at present. The entire number of Japanese tramp steamers now working various services totals 526 vessels with an aggregate of 2,758,000 tons gross.

Compared with the number in April, a decrease of 10 ships and 96 ships was experienced on the Australian and trans-Pacific services respectively, while the unusual increase of 117 vessels and 26 ships was observed on the nearsea and South China, South Seas and Hindu services respectively. The trans-Atlantic services also saw an increase of 9 Japanese ships which took up the wheat shipment from American Pacific ports to Europe.

There are now 19 tramp ships with an aggregate of 163,000 tons on the European service; 14 vessels of 132,000 tons on the trans-Atlantic service; 44 vessels of 378,000 tons on the trans-Pacific service; 4 ships of 34,600 tons on the Australian service; 87 vessels of 433,000 tons on the South China, South Seas and Hindu services; 318 vessels of 1,452,000 tons on the nearsea and coasting services; 28 vessels of 162,600 tons in dock; and 2 ships of 5,000 tons tied up.

COASTING SHIPS INCREASE

The allotment of ships on the nearsea and coasting services has been on the increase since March and the present number of 318 vessels is a record figure for Japan. The constant coming in for shares of oversea ships on the coasting trade is causing this unusual overcrowding of ships and the lumber freight for one has been on a downward trend from Y.200 to Y.160

This freight depression is expected to revive with the organisation of the Unchin Domei, the nationalist steamship freight conference. Reanimation is noticed on the trans-Atlantic freight service with the resumption of the American wheat shipments to European countries in which more than a dozen Japanese steamers are now engaged.

The trans-Pacific service was actively exploited by European and American merchantmen after the September earthquake and they once totaled over 600,000 tons which were almost entirely under Japanese charter for the transportation of reconstruction materials from American Pacific ports. There are now about 150,000 tons of such ships still under charter but the majority of them will be relieved of their services on the expiration of the terms of their charters by the end of June.

EXPECT ELASTIC FREIGHTS

With a gradual decrease of ships working the trans-Pacific service, the steamer freight is expected to show signs of elasticity. The present number of ships on this service is almost the same as the pre-quake number and business should be restored to the normal placidity in the near future.

Business remains unchanged on the European freight service and cargo destined to Scandinavian countries from Japan are not large. Freights for London and Liverpool are not alluring enough for shipowners to despatch their ships. Excepting the cargo movement in Australia, business is depressed on the Australian service. No improvement is evident on either outward or homeward Seattle services but satisfactory freight profit is realised on the New York freight service by way of the Panama Canal. Shipment of gunny bags from Calcutta to North America is lifting its head and Japanese ships are profiting with the shipment.

Weather Reports

May 28.—Large maximum between Lake Baikal and the Yangtsze. The depression decreases in Hokkaido. There is still an area of low pressures between the North of the China Sea and the South of the Loochoos. Moderate cyclonic circulation in that area; light and variable breezes, with local calms, all along our coasts. Fine and hot weather at Shanghai and almost everywhere in China. Rain at Manila and in Tongking.

May 29.—Pressure rising and exceeding the normal value. Cloudy, fine and hot weather. Moderate or light easterly breezes

Develop Vancouver As Shipping Center

Work Now Progressing Which Will Increase Capacity Of Canadian Port

The growth of Vancouver as the grain shipping port of Western Canada is a development which is attracting considerable attention not only in British trade circles, but is also being hailed as one of the most important steps taken in years by the grain growers of Western Canada. An important step in this direction was the recent acquisition by the Spillers Milling Company of the Vancouver Terminal Grain Company, and in this connection Spillers contemplate the immediate erection of a grain elevator with a capacity of 2,000,000 bushels of grain. It is expected that this work will be completed in time to handle the 1924 crop of Western Canada.

British interests commenting upon the development express the opinion that the erection of the elevator is just what was wanted to enable Vancouver to deal with the large quantities of wheat which are being diverted to the Western route from the great grain regions of Alberta. Last year, according to the information, saw a remarkable growth in this movement to the West, and it proved quite successful in relieving the pressure on the Eastern route traffic demonstrating clearly that the West coast is the natural outlet for this wheat region. The amount of tonnage thus attracted out to the North Pacific was the largest on record.

This year, according to opinion, the seasonal trade in grain is expected to be larger than ever, because of the increased activity upon the part of the grain farmers in the Alberta section, and while the requirements of Japan in the way of foodstuffs, lumber and iron and steel are likely to continue for some time, Canada expects to get a fair amount of this business. Freights to the North Pacific, it is expected, will again be a feature of importance to Western Canada during the current year.

Japanese Now Manage Siberian Fisheries

Nippon Capital Controls Over 90 Per Cent. Of Interests

At the present time the fishing industry of the Russian Far East is concentrated to the extent of over 90 percent in the hands of Japanese capital. "Dalriba" (Far East-Fish) Soviet Institution states that according to the rentals paid in 1923 the Japanese had control over 62 percent of the fishing industry; Russian private fishers, 10 percent; Gosprom Soviet Trade, 8 percent; and the local population, 8 percent. It must be noted, however, that practically all private fishers, co-operatives and local population work on Japanese capital whereupon they are entirely dependent.. The Dalcentrozoyus concessioned to the Japanese a fishing district even in the inner waters. Japanese capital evinced its activity even in the sphere of labor. Of the total number of 34,000 workmen employed last year there 64 percent Japanese workmen, and only 27 percent Russian, while the rest consisted of Koreans and Chinese. In order to cope with the Japanese influence in the fishing industry of the Russian Far East there was established a share company in the Nikolaievak district under the name of "Far Eastern Fishing Industry Co." The first operative year of the company was closed with a profit of 200,000.

During the forthcoming season the Gosprom in with the Dalcentrozoyus (Union of Far East Co., operatives), and private capital will open activity on the Kamtchtka and along the Okhotsk coast. It is also intended to transfer the Murmansk Preserve Factory to Kamtchatka. There is noticed a very intense demand for Amur and Kamtchatka fish on the part of foreign market.

(French Wireless through Reuter)

Paris, May 28.—Great Britain has requested the League of Nations at its next session to discuss the question of transformation of military control in Austria, Hungary and Bulgaria.

Paris, May 28.—Dr. Benes, the Czecho-Slovak Prime Minister, has arrived at Rome, where he will sign the Italo-Czech treaty, which completes the harmony between the Franco-Czech treaty and the Treaties of Peace.

Paris, May 28.—Herr Hergt, the Nationalist leader, not having given assurance that he would safeguard the Republican constitution, President Ebert has instructed Herr Marx to reconstruct the Ministry.

The opening of the session of the Reichstag gave rise to incidents. Communists, dressed in black shirts, offered bouquets of blood-red flowers to General von Ludendorff and in the disorder intoned the Internationale, the Right countering by singing Deutschland Ueber Allies.

It is said that President Ebert will ask Herr Hergt, the Natfonalist leader to form the new German Cabinet or, if he fails, he will propose to Herr Marx to reform the Ministry.

The "Pourquo! Pas" under the command of the explorer, M. Charcot, will sail tomorrow for Iceland on an oceanographic and meteorological expedition.

M. Herriot told the correspondent of the London Daily Mail at Lyons: "When I am in power, I shall try to arrange as soon as possible a visit to Mr. MacDonald. I am a confirmed Anglophil. I have made fifteen journeys to England. I am not opposed to recognition of the Soviet Government but I think that we must not submit to manoeuvers of intimidation. I am watching the present Russo-British negotiations in London. I have a firm determination to maintain the franc exchange on the world market."

British Government circles appear uneasy about the present situation in Germany. Lord d'Abernon, the Ambassador in Berlin, has endeavored to persuade the Germans to give a proof of moderation. His impressions given after his return from Berlin can, it is said, be summed up in the conviction that close co-operation of the Allies is necessary to break German resistance.

The Anglo-Turkish negotiations on the subject of Mosul have been adjourned. The Turks demand the restitution of the contested territory, while the British insist on the maintenance of the present frontier.

Admiral Washington Invited As Guest For American Ball

World Fliers Also May Attend Charity Function Wednesday

The Committee for the Charity Ball to be given in Marble Hall on Wednesday, June 4, under the joint auspices of the American Woman's Club and the American Civilian Relief, announced yesterday that Rear-Admiral Thomas W. Washington, commander of the American Asiatic squadron may also be a guest. The American 'round-the-world aviators, who are due to arrive in Shanghai on Sunday or Monday, have already been invited and the American Legion announced that they would all attend the ball in person if possible. Rear-Admiral Washington is now in the North and, in the event he reaches Shanghai in time, will attend the ball.

Emphasis is being laid on the fact that nothing except drinks and smokes will be sold at the ball, and these at regular cafe prices.

In order to insure a good time for those who wish to attend but do not dance—if there are any non-dancers in Shanghai—the best professional and amateur entertainers have been obtained and there will be lively numbers and acts between every few dances. Mrs. O'Hara will be among the singers. For the dancers, the jazzy, zippy Parisian orchestra will play.

Notice to Subscribers

Before going on furlough or leaving Shanghai for a holiday, don't forget to call at The China Press offices, No. 14, Kiukiang Road, and arrange to have your paper forwarded.
